

2020 IMPACT UPDATE

Listening, Learning, and Responding to Crises

COVID-19, a deep economic recession and protests stemming from systemic racism have changed the way the world operates. Like the rest of the country, Contra Costa County finds itself confronting three forces—one a disease, the others powerful social determinants of health (SDOH)—that pose an enormous threat to the well-being of the people the Community Health Fund is committed to serving.

Early in the pandemic, we decided that the best way for us to respond was to build on our longstanding approach of listening carefully to and partnering with our grantees. We reached out to leaders of these community nonprofits to determine how we could help. That led to creation of a special COVID-19 response fund that included easing the application process, and quickly delivering targeted grants. We then followed up to understand what worked, what didn't, and where we could best plug in our help going forward.

This was also the approach we used to support the three grantees whose original initiatives were compromised by the pandemic and who make up the centerpiece of this year's Impact Update. These truly innovative organizations—experts at addressing the SDOH—worked closely with us to adapt their original proposals so they could continue to provide, and even extend the remarkable services they offer to those most in need in Contra Costa County.

We are committed to deepening our listening and learning approach, using it as the foundation for connecting complementary organizations and facilitating lasting solutions that make the most of available resources. Combining this process with our

Kenneth Carlson

Drew Robinson CHF VICE CHAIR

Our partners—a group of savvy, compassionate, deeply committed nonprofits—are extraordinary.

-Kenneth Carlson

Chair, CHF

relatively small size makes us uniquely capable of responding quickly and nimbly to an ever-changing world. Perhaps that's why we recently received national recognition from The Root Cause Coalition in its 2020 Status of Health Equity Report.

Such an approach only works, however, when you have outstanding partners. As this year's report demonstrates, our partners—a group of savvy, compassionate, deeply committed nonprofits—are extraordinary. They exemplify so much of what is right in this moment, with their proven ability to deliver essential, at times life-saving services to people who face challenges to their health that have remained unaddressed for far too long—and that these ongoing crises exacerbate. We are honored to work alongside them.

CHF BOARD MEMBERS

Kenneth Carlson, CHAIR Drew Robinson, VICE CHAIR Ernesto Avila, TREASURER Gail Cristancho, SECRETARY Dominic Aliano Carolyn Fong, RN, NP, PhD Michelle Hernandez, PhD Arthur Shingleton Rina Shah, M.D. Cynthia Turner

STAFF

Lillian Roselin EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR Mary Serrano GRANTS & FINANCIAL OPERATIONS MANAGER

How to Sustain Promising Initiatives Through a Pandemic

CHF funding often addresses what are known as social determinants of health with programs that include workforce development, health education, case management, social support, healthy eating and nutrition, and support for aging in place. The organizations below are outstanding examples that understand how to address those social determinants.

We've been struck with the creative adaptations and resilience of our grantees through this pandemic. They are driven by a powerful commitment to and belief in the people they serve and an understanding that the stressors associated with the lives their constituents lead have a corrosive effect on health.

Original Plans Organizations Adapted Plans EAST CONTRA COSTA EXPANSION: Love Never Fails Sex Traffickers Love Hire a program manager to conduct an Technology Too. in-depth assessment of the health and Restores, educates, and wellness needs of human trafficking Traffickers use social media to befriend kids and gain their trust. protects survivors of survivors in Contra Costa County and Be safe online. For help, call 888-373-7888 🖄 🖆 human trafficking and begin providing services to those survivors. their community Unable to fully engage in street-level outreach during the pandemic, Love Never Fails has city of Antioch to adopt and support a local hotel where they discovered human trafficking occurring; worked with the hotel owner to house vulnerable homeless and exploited individuals and bring in wraparound services; and built partnerships with organizations around East Contra Costa County. PITTSBURG FAMILY HARVEST FARM: John Muir Land Trust In collaboration with First Place for Youth, Uplift Family Services, Youth Protects and cares for open Homes, and Contra Costa County space, ranches, farms, Independent Living Skills Program pilot a two-year apprenticeship parkland and shoreline in program for emancipated foster youth the East Bay to learn important job skills, while building a supportive community FAMILY HARVEST FARM with wrap-around social services, When COVID-19 shelter-in-place orders delayed the initiative's start date, the partners OHN MUIR LAND TRU developed protocols to protect their first cohort of emancipated foster youth at the worksite access to fresh food and guidance about continuing education. and during their commutes. To help establish a mental health foundation for the youths as they enter the adult workforce, the partners have created a supportive community at the farm and are extending it by building a network with other local nonprofits. Mindful Life Project CONTRA COSTA EXPANSION:

Works to support the mental and emotional wellness of students, teacher, staff, leaders, and families through mindfulness programming

Partner with Mt. Diablo and Pittsburg Unified School Districts to empower underserved students and their families, teachers and staff through mindfulness practice and other transformative skills.

-Lillian Roselin Executive Director, CHF

leveraged online tools to expand its outreach to human trafficking victims; worked with the

With in-person classes suddenly impossible, Mindful Life Project turned to online Zoom service delivery. This enabled the organization to deliver services for students, teachers and parents in Pittsburg USD, a new partner, while also expanding Mindful Life Project's partnership with Mt. Diablo USD.

2020 Community Health Partners

Because of the support of John Muir Health—$1 million per year—the Community Health Fund can carry out a unique community benefit function, distributing grants to nonprofit organizations working to improve the health and well-being of medically uninsured, underinsured, underserved, and vulnerable populations most at-risk for poor health in Central and East Contra Costa County.

5003 Commercial Circle, Suite 275, Concord, CA 94520 • 925-941-3100 www.johnmuirhealth.com/CHF